The vets on this list are trained to practice “homeopathic” veterinary medicine as part of their practice - and are members of the Academy of Veterinary Homeopathy. Homeopathy was a critical part of my dog Marty’s cancer care, and, in my mind, one of the most important things we did to help save his life...

For more information about the Academy of Veterinary Homeopathy please visit their website at <http://www.theavh.org>.

This list is for informational purposes only. It is not intended to recommend any of the vets included on this list. Please conduct your own research and be selective when choosing which vet to use for your pet.

This AVH member list is sorted into 3 categories...

- AVH Homeopathic Vets practicing in the United States
- AVH Homeopathic Vets practicing in Canada, and
- Other AVH Homeopathic Vets practicing around the world

All vets are listed according to their telephone “Area Code” – To find a vet who practices in your area, just scroll down to your home area code (and remember to search other area codes in your general area to increase your chance of finding a vet near you...)

Unfortunately, as you will see, there are not many vets listed on this AVH referral database of homeopathic vets..., so you may have to travel some distance (r consider telephone consultations) if you want your dog to be treated by one of these vets...

And finally, if you can’t find an AVH member vet near you, please check out the alternate list of “holistic” vets who belong to the “Academy of Holistic Veterinary Medicine” (AHVMA) – those vets are generally well practiced using the supplements and natural care I recommend in my book and practice a wide variety of alternative natural “holistic” healing methods (including some who practice homeopathy).

I have attached a list of AHVMA vets in a separate file, or you can search their online database at <http://www.holisticvetlist.com>

Now, on to the AVH list of homeopathic veterinarians...

(Note: You can read the AVH’s comments and disclaimers regarding this list at <http://www.theavh.org/referral/index.php>)
